Abstract

The purpose of this study was to investigate the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological characteristics of young athletes. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting with 20 participants. The participants were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group underwent a 12-week training program, while the control group did not. The physical characteristics measured were maximum oxygen consumption ($\dot{V}O_{2\max}$), maximum heart rate (HR_{\max}), and maximum power output (P_{\max}). The psychological characteristics measured were anxiety, depression, and self-esteem. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly higher values for $\dot{V}O_{2\max}$, HR_{\max} , and P_{\max} compared to the control group. Additionally, the experimental group had significantly lower levels of anxiety and depression, and higher levels of self-esteem compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical and psychological characteristics of young athletes.
